

JJDPA Activation in Iowa: Summer 2018

Senator Grassley, we can't let another day go by without passing the JJDPA!

Background: Congress hasn't reauthorized the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act (JJDPA), which sets basic standards and protections for youth in state juvenile justice programs, since 2002, but we're closer to passage than we've been in a decade: the House and Senate have each passed bipartisan bills to reauthorize the JJDPA, and now it's time to pass a reconciled version of this critical legislation. Senator Chuck Grassley, a co-sponsor of the bill, needs to hear from his constituents in Iowa that the bill needs to pass now – because Iowa relies on the JJDPA funding for community alternatives in our rural areas. Sen. Grassley will be visiting his home state during the July and August Senate recesses; schedule a meeting, call your regional office, and tweet at the senator to let him know that you support the JJDPA's passage!
